

MODERN GIRLS PREPARE FOR RESPONSIBILITY
Mrs. L. W. St. Clair-Moss Tells Her Conclusions After 19 Years as College President.
STRESSES HOME MAKING
Says Educated Woman Today Is Finer, More Serviceable and Practical Than Ever Before.

"The educated woman of today is a finer, more serviceable and practical type of woman than has ever been developed before," said Mrs. L. W. St. Clair-Moss, president emerita of Christian College, in giving her impressions of the changes which have occurred in educational work during her nineteen years as president of the college.

Mrs. Moss attributes the impetus in education for women to reaction from the war. Since women and girls have learned that to work is an interesting as well as profitable way to spend their time, they have discovered new fields for endeavor, and new energy with which to meet them.

"During the war it was fashionable to be idle," she continued. "Now colleges and schools are teaching that it is unproductive, in peace as well as in war. The profession of teaching, always an honored one, is open to those who wish to serve their country, and the serious, earnest preparation which large numbers of young women are making for it is proof that they have heard the call of duty."

"Business positions, journalism, training in physical education and home economics are all calling girls of today to prepare for responsibility in future positions."

Education on the whole, Mrs. Moss said, is broader now than it has ever been before. A range and choice of subjects is now offered by every college which was undreamed of a few years ago. Girls are allowed to develop their tastes more independently in every direction.

The abolishing of uniforms in most schools came as a recognition of girls' individuality, Mrs. Moss stated. It would seem ridiculous now to think that one college could develop among two or three hundred students a type so distinct as to make one form of dress suitable for them all, she said. Women have reached the place where they will not be cramped by any such narrow conventionalities of custom.

Because 90 per cent of college women marry, Mrs. Moss is strongly in favor of giving in the college course a good foundation for home making. All academic, scientific and specialized courses are useful to the home maker, she believes, if they are rightly applied. Her ideal for Christian College has been the training of future home makers.

"There are only two kinds of girls today," she said, "the frivolous or indifferent, who are bent on a good time and nothing more in life, and the girl who expects to make her life useful to herself and her country. The first type attend the schools where they rightfully belong—the finishing school, where social graces are taught. The other type come to college. The per cent of the latter type is growing larger every year."

The junior colleges, she thinks, meet the need of the girls who can attend college for a limited time, or who should have some training before she enters a larger institution. Most girls need some social training. They get this in smaller colleges where work is concentrated in a few buildings and where they are under the direct supervision of teachers.

Watches Have 135 to 150 Parts and Repairing is Tedious Work
There is not a man who has more time than a jeweler, and yet there is not a man who has more time than a jeweler.

It is the repairing of watches and not the selling of diamonds that keeps Columbus jewelers constantly at work. If you have a watch in need of repairs you must wait from three days to three weeks.

One jeweler said that the first thing a person tells him is to have the broken watch repaired as soon as possible. In some cases he has found that the watch has been at home for several weeks while in others the need for the watch has been found to be urgent. If a hand or crystal is all that is needed the work is usually done while the customer waits.

When asked why they are so busy, all the jewelers say that they are always busy at this time of year. L. C. Adams of the Adams Jewelry Company says that he does not handle much student trade but is busy without it. The other jewelers attribute some of the work to the coming of the students. According to A. Buchroeder, most of his increased watch repair work has come from students who live in towns which either have no reliable watch repairer or have jewelers who send the watch away to have the work done. N. A. Lindsey of Lindsey's Jewelry Company says that he never does get caught up with his work until the first of the year, but is able to get urgent work done in a short time.

Charles H. Geary and F. A. Henniger are as busy as other watch repairers and also get much student trade. Repairing a watch is a tedious job and requires much skill. Most men found out how complicated the works of a watch are when they were boys. "Three days after a boy receives a watch something goes wrong with it. The reason is that on the first day he made a mistake in trying to adjust it. On the fourth day, having developed the courage to defy his mother's warning not to "monkey" with the watch, he steals off to some quiet spot State's Attorney Mackey Hoyle that he had killed both. He killed his wife, according to the confession, because, according to the alleged confession, he was tired of civilian life and wanted to get back in the army.

"It's a softer life in the army," he told interviewers.

He killed the "ragged stranger," the alleged confession stated, because he wanted to prevent any "double crossing."

According to the story police say Wanderer told them, he hired the "ragged stranger" in a West Madison street lodging house for $3. To date his body has not been identified, though it has been lying in the county morgue for many months.

Following the alleged confession Wanderer stated he didn't care what happened to him. He said his mind was at rest and he was ready for the walk to the gallows.

The state plans to demand that he be hung.

WANDERER TRIAL OCTOBER 4
Ex-Army Lieutenant, Who Murdered Wife, Will Be Tried for Life.
By United Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—Charged with murdering his girl-wife of a year and slaying a "ragged stranger" whom he hired to stage a fake holdup, Carl Wanderer, ex-army lieutenant, is scheduled to go on trial for his life here October 4.

The Wanderer case was given nationwide publicity, because of the mystery attached to it. Wanderer, just out of the army, was working in his father's butcher shop. One night, according to the first story he told the police, he returned home with his wife to find a "ragged stranger" standing in the vestibule of their home. The "ragged stranger," police said Wanderer told them, ordered them to throw up their hands.

Wanderer stated it was dark in the vestibule. Instead of complying with the stranger's demand, Wanderer fired. When the police arrived they found the young wife and the alleged holdup man dead.

Wanderer for a time convinced the police that he was telling the truth until they traced the ownership of the pistol used by the "ragged stranger." It was found that the revolver had originally been sold to Wanderer.

After a grueling cross-examination, Wanderer is alleged to have confessed to

GOOD PROSPECT FOR ALL CROPS
U. S. Survey Says Warm Weather Is Needed—Live Stock in Good Condition.
A survey of general crop conditions in the United States for the week ending September 11, made by the U. S. Bureau of Crop Estimates, has been received by E. A. Logan, agricultural statistician for Missouri. It says, in part:

The prospect for the corn crop continues good in Arkansas, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia and Tennessee. In practically all of the leading corn-producing states the condition is excellent, but the crop is late and from two to four weeks of warm, fair weather are needed to insure proper maturity. Recent rains are still further delaying maturity throughout the central states. The crop is beginning to mould in Eastern Kansas and in Oklahoma.

Threshing of winter wheat is still in progress in Colorado and yields are reported as being higher than usual. Preparations for fall seeding are progressing and some seeding is being done in Kansas, Missouri, Oklahoma and Washington. Missouri and Tennessee report an increase in acreage as probable while North Carolina expects the acreage to be decreased somewhat because of the small profit this year.

Threshing of spring wheat is nearing completion in most states. Yields are generally good in Colorado and Wyoming. Yields are spotted in Minnesota and Montana and generally unsatisfactory in South Dakota. Black stem rust and scab cut the yields 50 per cent in Nebraska, and drought, rust and hoppers caused damage in North Dakota.

Buffalo, N. Y. —on a Saturday!
PETEY, LISTEN HARD!
When it's your good luck to butt into Buffalo, go to that store on Ellicott Square where the dark haired clerk slips out Camels with both hands—plus a tank of talk on the side!

The thing that tickled me most was his sureness that I was after Camels! As soon as I had my coin on the counter and before I could say a word, he flashed me a package of Camels! When I asked him how he knew I wanted Camels, he took a pull on his laugh stock and soaked me with this:—"Can't tell you, old mayonnaise—I'm dressing!"

After he had waited on several other men who drew their Camels like I did, this salesman said:—"For a fact, most men here smoke Camels. They hit the popular taste! Camels have the right body and the right mildness and the right flavor! They're ALL right!"

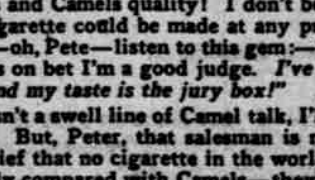

And, Pete—he added this without a stutter: The more I see of the world and the more I learn about cigarettes, the more respect I have for Camels and Camels quality! I don't believe a better cigarette could be made at any price! And Pete—oh, Pete—listen to this gem:—"And it's an odds on bet I'm a good judge. I've tried 'em all—and my taste is the jury box!"

If that isn't a swell line of Camel talk, I'll sell my shoes! But, Pete, that salesman is right! It's my belief that no cigarette in the world can be so favorably compared with Camels—they're so smooth and mellow and delightful!

I'm herewith slipping between the sheets, old book. So, you tell 'em the rest—you're so full of knowledge!

Sincerely
Shorty
